

WHO KILLED DR. BLOOM?

Scenario: Dr. Bloom invites Arnetta to a coffee night club to discuss her grade in his class. Although she was working hard, Dr. Bloom shares with her that she will be dropped from the class. He recommends that she give up on teaching and just stick with chemistry. Arnetta becomes upset and leaves the table as soon as the appetizer arrives.

Dr. Bloom ignores her pain and begins eating the spinach dip he ordered. Dr. Bloom exclaims loudly that the food is terrible and the chef is a horrible cook. The chef, Rachel, over hears him insulting her four stars rated, food network praised food and becomes furious. As much as she wants to yell at him, she remembers her court ordered anger management class and calms down a tad-bit; she can't risk losing her job by arguing with another customer. Dr. Bloom orders a new dish of a puffer fish salad and potatoes and yells back at the waiter, as he submits the order, not to let the disgusting chef touch his food.

Arnetta returns to the table as the evening entertainment begins. The headlining show is Alex the Amazing, a magician. Dr. Bloom recognizes Alex as his former student, and Alex recognizes him too. Alex remembers when Dr. Bloom brought him to this coffee club and told him he was wasting his time doing magic, and that he was going to be a failure. Alex wanted him dead; as he does his act he decides a good alternative would be make him disappear. Dr. Bloom volunteers to come on stage to help with the next part of Alex's act. Alex gives Dr. Bloom a "magic potion" that will make him disappear, a new act Alex had been practicing on his parents for a week. Dr. Bloom laughs in his face, that it will never work, but drinks the potion anyway. Alex says the magic words and Dr. Bloom doesn't disappear. He returns to his seat yelling, 'I told you magic was a waste of time.'

Back at the table, Arnetta is still quite furious and upset. Dr. Bloom asks her to order him a new coffee while he uses the restroom. Arnetta orders the coffee but finds some salt-like silver dust in the bottom of her bag and sprinkles it in his Gryffindor thermos to make the coffee taste horrible.

Back in the kitchen, Chef Rachel is preparing Dr. Bloom's food against his request. Being careless, she sloppily prepares his meal, throwing random food onto his salad. She tops it off by spitting in it and sends it out the door to his table.

Dr. Bloom returns to his seat as the food arrives. He takes a huge bite of his salad, and a sip of his coffee. Rachel watched from the back wall as he devoured her salad. Arnetta smiled as he drank all his coffee and began scratching his arm. After finishing his meal he scratched his arm again then took Arnetta back to campus, and went to his office to do some last minute work.

Dr. Bloom was found the next morning in his office in Jordan Hall dead.
